Pachaiyappa Mudaliar

THE GREAT PHILANTHROPIST

[1754 -1794]

Our College is a unit of Pachaiyappa's Charities. It will be of immense interest to know about Pachaiyappa, the father of the Charities.

Pachaiyappa Mudaliar was born in 1754 in Periapalayam, some forty miles to the north-east of Kanchipuram. His father Viswanatha Mudaliar, a native of Kanchipuram, had died few months earlier to his birth and leaving his family in distress. When Pachaiyappa was five years of age, his mother took him to Madras along with his two sisters and lived in a small house in Swamy Maistry Street. There she sought the protection of one Mr. Narayana Pillai, a wealthy Dubash in the service of the Powneys, an influential English family merchant. Narayana Pillai with his characteristic generosity, treated her as his own sister and educated young Pachaiyappa in account keeping, correspondence and the rudiments of the English language.

Pachaiyappa quickly learnt English and was all set ready for business. He first became a small scale agent of goods imported by the English merchants of Madras and also purchased supplies for export too. Mr. Narayana Pillai got him appointed as a Dubash under one Mr. Nicholas, a travelling merchant in Tamil Nadu Districts. In this capacity, he travelled widely in the south and made some money. Even in those early years he was deeply religious minded. In 1774, when he was only twenty he built the Kalyana mandapam of the Ekambareswarar temple at Kanchipuram and was responsible for two sacred images to be installed in that temple. He had the Kumbabishekam celebration performed on a grand scale.

In 1776, Pachaiyappa extended his business transactions in Chengleput District and became the most successful negotiator of loans. He undertook to pay the East India Company, in cash the land tax due to them from several groups of villages. He also transacted agency business between the English merchants and the officials of the court of the Nawab of Carnatic and earned the gratitude of both the parties. Soon after, he became the Senior Dubash of Mr. J. Sullivan, a member of the Civil Service of the East India Company who was appointed as British Political Agent at the Durbar of the Carnatic Nawab. In 1783 when Mr. Sullivan became the Chief Civil Administrator in Trichinopoly, Pachaiyappa Mudaliar was appointed as his assistant to provide the necessary supplies to the army. Pachaiyappa's earnestness of purpose, persuasive power, capacity for organisation and the success that followed his work won him appreciation of the authorities.

Shortly after this, Pachaiyappa entered the service of the Rajah of Tanjore. The Rajah had found it hard to pay his annual tribute regularly in one uniform coinage. Pachaiyappa acted as an agent for making remittances of the Rajah's annual tribute to Madras in regular instalments and received a commission of 10 to 20% on the sums remitted. He also successfully negotiated the terms of the peshkash of several polygars of the southern country subject to the Nawab of Carnatic. In these ways he amassed a handsome fortune of about twenty lakhs of Rupees and built a spacious house for himself at Komaleswaranpet named after him. In 1787, after Amar Singh ascended the throne of Tanjore. Sir Archibald Campbell, the Governor of Madras appointed Pachaiyappa Mudaliar to assist Mr. William Petric, Commissioner for the realization of the revenues of Tanjore. Pachaiyappa had to lend a large sum of money to the Rajah to enable him to pay his arrears of tribute to the East India company. After the necessary arrangements were made for regular remittance of the annual tribute from Tanjore, Mr. Petric returned to Madras, while Pachaiyappa continued to stay on at the Rajah's court maintaining a high style of living with all the dignity attached to his position of importance.

His position and prestige at the court of Tanjore evoked the envy of the European residents of Tanjore, who complained to the Madras Government that some money-lenders and Pachaiyappa, were lending money to the Rajah, at exorbitant rates of interest and were thus encouraging him to indulge in extravagant expenditure and that their removal from Tanjore would benefit both the people and their Prince. In this connection Pachaiyappa had to go over to Madras to insist on the continual of his own position at the court of Tanjore and how his removal would be in contravention of Sir Archibald Campbell's special order of appointment. An investigation followed and Pachaiyappa was completely exonerated in 1791.

It was during his stay at Madras in 1791 that Pachaiyappa made his endowments to the Sri Sabhanayaka shrine at Chidamabaram.

He arranged for embellishment of the inner sanctum and for the renovation of the superstructure of the east gopuram. In the gateway of the tower are still to be seen the images of Pachaiyappa and his sister Subbammal. He also made a gift of a large number of silver vessels used in the daily worship of the Deity and several ornaments of inestimable value. He provided a new Car for Deity and constructed a mandapam for it and instituted a new annual Brahmotsavam festival known as Ani Tirumanjanam, for the observance of which he later made provision in his Will.

Pachaiyappa returned to Tanjore in 1792 and resumed his duties and also carried on his banking business. Pachaiyappa had no sons. He had first married his sister's daughter. As he had no child by her, he married for the second time when he was residing at Tanjore by whom he had a daughter. But his health had failed and he was then an ailing man. When his illness, became rather serious, he proceeded to Kumbakonam for treatment and during his short stay there, he completed the construction of a choultry which he had begun sometime before. It was at Kumbakonam on 22nd March, 1794, that he drew up his famous Will "dedicating with full knowledge and hearty resignation of all his wealth, in the absence of any male issue, to the sacred service of Siva, Vishnu and to certain charities at various temples and places of pilgrimage, to the erection of religious edifices, to bounties to the poor, to seminaries of Sanskrit learning and to other objects of general benevolence. " On the 24th March he sent an autograph letter to his old Patron Narayana pillai saying that his end was near and requesting him to settle all his affairs including prompt payment of every pie due from him to others. He then proceeded to Tiruvaiyar, a sacred place to the northwest of Tanjore and there breathed his last on the 31st March, 1794. He was only forty when he died. The sacred places which immediately benefited by his bequests are Chidambaram, Sirkazhi, Thiruvidadaimarudur, Kumbakonam, Thiruvaiyar, Jambukeswaram, Srirangam, Tanjore, Thiruvottiyur, Madurai, Rameswaram, Kanchipuram, Thiruvarur, Thiruvannamalai, Triplicane and even the distant Benares.

Pachaiyappa Mudaliar was among the foremost Dubashis of his time. He was simple, kind-hearted and God-fearing man, ever inclined to pity the poor and used his money and influence for their relief. He kept a large establishment for dispensing hospitality. He was of a fair complexion with broad forehead and bright intelligent eyes. In appearance and dress he was simple, attractive and dignified. His popularity, wherever he went, was amazing. His name was on everybody's lips on account of his wide sympathy and benevolent charities. His was the remarkable career of a self-made man, who though born and brought up in poverty, rose by his own force of character and genius to be the richest man of his time but who finally gave away all his riches for the service of God and humanity.

In those days 'Wills' were almost unknown and their validity was scarcely recognised. The consequence was that for many years successive executors neglected the provisions of Pachaiyappa's Will and misappropriated the funds therein settled. Fortunately, the matter came to the notice of Sir Herbert Crompton, the then Advocate-General who there upon filed information in the Supreme Court and obtained a decree against the person finally liable for the performance of the charities and also for an account of the funds with accumulated interest, amounting to many lakhs of Rupees. However, the person against whom the decree was passed could only pay small portion of his liabilities. Thiru George Norton, the next Advocate-General succeeded in recovering a large quantity of jewels and thereby realising in respect of the claim a total sum of about eight lakhs of Rupees. In a further decree passed in 1841 prepared a scheme whereby, in duo harmony with the provisions of the Will and without touching upon any specific religious or benevolent bequests therein mentioned, it was directed that all accumulation, beyond one lakh of pagodas (four and a half lakhs of Rupees) should be devoted to educational establishments in various parts of the Presidency, and particularly in the city of Madras. The control of these endowments became vested by law in the Board of Revenue which, under instructions from Lord Elphinstone's Government embodied the Scheme of the Supreme Court in a kind of Letter Patent and created a body of Hindu Trustees to administer the whole and carry out the benevolent intentions of the testator.

A school was established in the town of Madras in January, 1842 under the name of Pachaiyappa's Central Institution for the purpose of imparting gratuitous education to the poorer classes of the Hindu Community. This school became very popular and it had developed into the present Pachaiyappa's College, Madras.

The usefulness of Pachaiyappa's benefaction has been augmented by the generosity of enlightened members of the Hindu Community who put the Trustees in-Charge of large funds to be utilised for educational purposes. Some of those benefactors were Ami Govindu Naicker, P. T. Lee Chengal- Naicker, Oleti Ranganayaki Ammal, Chellammal and Kandaswami Naidu.

The late Thiru C. Kandaswami Naidu of Aminjikarai, Madras had made the Trustees residuary beneficiaries of his vast estate. In the year 1967, two Colleges were started in his name, one at Cuddalore for Women and another one at Madras for Men.

At present the charities manage six colleges of which three are for women, and a number of schools catering education to thousands of students in the cities of Madras, Kanchipuram, Cuddalore and Chidambaram. All these developments have augmented the usefulness of these institutions which have filled a very large and laudable place in the cultural life of South India for over a century.

Strength does not come from physical capacity. It comes from an indomitable will.

Condavaru Kandaswami Naidu Garu

OUR BENEVOLENT FOUNDER

Intensely religious and God-fearing, Kandaswami Naidu was born in the year 1885 in Kalvoi Village near Thirupporur in Chingleput District. Though a Vaishnavite by birth, he was named after the presiding deity of the place, Lord Kandaswami.

Driven by strained circumstances Lakshmiah Naidu had left Kalvoi Village with their nine years old Kandaswami and three more children and reached Chetpet in Madras city around the year 1894, accompanied by some of his relatives and members of the community. Lakshmiah used to go to the Revu (as the Harbour was then called) where construction work was in progress and earned a little by working as a brick layer. Being very poor, Lakshmiah could not think of sending his son and daughters to any regular school. Kandaswami invariably followed his father to the Revu and supplemented his father's meagre income. After his return from work, Kandaswami attended the school run by one Rangaswami Naicker, popularly as 'nondi vathiar' and learnt to read and write Telugu and Tamil. As an apprentice of Maistry Varadarajulu, he learnt ornamental and relief work in Masonry. Unfortunately, the demise of his father at that time, turned Kandaswami, his brother Venkatesan and two sisters, Chinnamma and Chenganiamma helpless orphans.

The burden of running the family fell on Kandaswami who was then in his early teens. None worked harder or lived more temperately than he did. Scorning delights and living hard laborious days, he pursued a career of industry. This early encounter with difficulty and adverse circumstances, proved to be lifting indispensable living condition for his later success. Thiru Calavala Cunnan Chetty, a wealthy businessman of Madras was then constructing godowns near the Harbour. Kandaswami sought employment there as a manual labourer at 1½ -annas a day. Necessity drove young Kandaswami to learn brick laying and plastering works more quickly and more efficiently than others. This he did while some of the structures of St. George Orphanage at Chetput were being put up. Within a short time, he established himself as a maistry under contractor by name Ramanuja Ayyar of Purasawalkam. He remained under his service for about seven to eight years and attempted to perfect himself by work and more work and carved out for himself an honorable competency and solid reputation for good workmanship.

A fortunate circumstance at this time gave a new turn and a fillip to his career. He entered service under Namberumal Chetty, a leading contractor. It was not, however, accident that helped Kandaswami but purposeful and persistent industry. If there had been accidents, they were carefully cultivated opportunities. Every step in his career was won by honest work, patience, perseverance and self-reliance amidst trials and difficulties. His sound understanding and quick perception soon suggested to him the possibilities of an independent career. With the small savings which he had or with the money which his father-in-law was said to have given him, he started brick kiln at Koyambedu near Madras and began manufacturing country bricks. With the permission of Namberumal Chetty, he took up small contracts and quickly established himself as an independent contractor, and one such was the excavation of earth for putting up the Pachaiyappa's Hostel Building at Chetput.

Soon, his power of organising labour, his efficiency, integrity and promptitude of action won for him recognition as a master builder and he was enlisted as a P.W.D. contractor and was assigned the construction of a number of government buildings. He switched on to the manufacture of chamber bricks in the kiln at Koyambedu. This fetched him good profits and his income steadily rose. Through his great and sustained efforts Thiru Kandaswami Naidu amassed a lot of wealth and acquired several properties. He constructed on his own seven bungalows in Harrington Road, Chetput and another at 19, Subbaraya Gramini Street which became his permanent residence afterwards, besides a number of smaller houses for middle and lower income groups of people. He purchased a block of 21 houses in Sait Colony, Egmore. In addition, he purchased valuable house sites to the extent of about 85 grounds in Chetput and lands and gardens to the extent of nearly 160 acres in Koodal, Medavakkam, Maduravoyal, Nerkundram and Ayanambakkam villages. For sometime, he acquired the Zamindari rights of Perumbedu Village, which he sold away to Sunampet Zamindar.

In 1944 at the age of 59, Thiru Naidu fell ill. In July of the same year, he settled some of his properties on his three minor daughters. He was then contemplating as to how best he could utilise the rest of his vast estate. His health deteriorated and in May 1948, he fell seriously ill. On the suggestion of some of his best friends and admirers among whom was Thiru K. Venkataswami Naidu, B.A., B.L., the then Trustee of Pachaiyappa's Charities, he caused his last Will and Testament to be drafted by his advocates Pais Lobo and Alvares of 113, Armenian Street, Madras and signed it on the 21st May, 1948 in the presence of Thiru A. K. Muthuswami, Advocate and Thiru K. Venkataswami Naidu. Two days later at about 9 pm. on Sunday the 23rd May 1948 in the presence of a host of relatives and friends, Thiru Kandaswami Naidu breathed his last. He was then 63 years. Under the will late C. Kandaswami Naidu bequeathed and endowed the residue of his vast estate, after express legacies to the charities of Pachaiyappa directing the Board of Trustee to " utilise the said amount according to the objects and provisions of the said Trust for the upkeep and maintenance and development of the institution "The board was also empowered to make any endowment in his name. The official Trustee was made the executor of the Will with full powers to sell and dispose the properties for the purposes stated in the Will. The Official Trustee took charge of the estate on the testator's death and obtained probate of the Will. Since then he has been administering the estate, valued at several lakhs of Rupees. In the course of nearly 20 years, the Official Trustee has realised about Rs. 14 lakhs by way of sale proceeds of certain properties (notably seven houses in Harrington Road) which were not remunerative and by way of income from the other immovable properties.

When Dr. A. Venugopal, M.S., F.R.C.S.. was the President of the Trust Board of the Pachaiyappa's Charities, as the legatees under the Will with the laudable intention of fulfilling the wishes of the benevolent testator and to perpetuate his name, resolved on 25th April, 1967 to create an endowment in the name of the testator by starting two Colleges, one for Men at Madras and the other for Women at Cuddalore from the academic year 1967-68. Towards this end the Trustees moved the High Court on the 27th April, 1967 for the issue of appropriate directions to the Official Trustee for the diversion of funds necessary for starting of the two colleges. The Hon'ble Justice Thiru T. Ramaprasada Rao, in his judgement delivered on the 4th May, 1967, allowed the application and directed the Official Trustee to offer security to the University for the sum of Rs. Four lakhs and also to advance a loan of six lakhs for the construction of buildings, etc. of the proposed Colleges. The loan thus paid has been made recoverable from the surplus income accrued from the estate payable to the Trustees of Pachaiyappa's Charities.
